

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF INDIANA
INDIANAPOLIS DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,) Plaintiff,) CAUSE NO.
-vs-) 1:13-cr-00150-WTL-TAB
GUOQING CAO and) Indianapolis, Indiana
SHUYU LI,) May 19, 2014
Defendants.) 10:00 a.m.

BEFORE THE HONORABLE WILLIAM T. LAWRENCE

OFFICIAL REPORTER'S TRANSCRIPT OF
HEARING ON DISCOVERY MOTIONS

21 Court Reporter: Cathy Easley Jones, RMR, FCRR
Official Court Reporter
22 46 East Ohio Street, Room 291
Indianapolis, IN 46204

PROCEEDINGS TAKEN BY MACHINE SHORTHAND
COMPUTER-AIDED TRANSCRIPTION

A P P E A R A N C E S

FOR THE GOVERNMENT: Ms. Cynthia Ridgeway
Assistant United States Attorney
10 West Market Street
Suite 2100
Indianapolis, IN 46204

FOR THE DEFENDANT
GUOQING CAO:

Mr. Alain Leibman
Mr. Matthew S. Adams
FOX ROTHSCHILD
907 Lenox Drive
Building 3
Lawrenceville, NJ 08648

Mr. David J. Hensel
Mr. William J. Barkimer
PENCE HENSEL
135 N. Pennsylvania Street
Suite 1600
Indianapolis, IN 46204

FOR THE DEFENDANT
SHUYU LI:

Mr. Scott C. Newman
ATTORNEY AT LAW
7722 Susan Drive South
Indianapolis, IN 46250

1 (In open court)

2 THE COURT: Be seated, please.

3 We are on the record on 1:13-cr-150, United States
4 of America versus Cao and Li. Good morning, everyone.

5 We are here today to talk about the continuing
6 issues regarding discovery. What I would like to do is go
7 through what I believe, in summary fashion, where we will be
8 in regards to those discovery issues at the end of the day. I
9 propose to go through them very -- quite frankly, in somewhat
10 quick, summary fashion. I will have a formal entry on the 11 docket by the close of business today.

12 We'll also talk about anything else you want to talk
13 about, whether it's discovery or otherwise; and it is my 14 fervent hope that we can agree upon a trial date this morning
15 also. So hopefully, you have access to your calendars so we 16 can double-check that.

17 Let me just ask before I start, are there any
18 agreements that have come down the pike after the discovery
19 issues were basically teed up?

20 MS. RIDGEWAY: Your Honor, I don't believe so.
21 Those issues that were in agreement we have articulated.
22 We've kind of referred to them as miscellaneous items. There
23 are several requests that the defendants have made that the 24 government is happy to oblige. Some of those are within these 25 pleadings. Some of them are not; but the bigger, larger

1 issues that were briefed for the Court, there's no resolution.

2 THE COURT: Very well.

3 Mr. Leibman?

4 MR. LEIBMAN: That's certainly accurate, Your Honor.

5 We agree with that.

6 THE COURT: Let me kind of go through my laundry
7 list here. If I've missed some or if we need further
8 explanation, we can discuss that.

9 In regards to the bill of particulars and the chart
10 that was previously exchanged, essentially, the defendants
11 want the government to specifically delineate what is and I
12 suppose by default what is not Lilly property.

13 I really think that the government has complied with 14 that. So I'm essentially going to deny that request in 15 regards to the bill of particulars, the updating of the chart.

16 E-mails, defendants are requesting e-mails going 17 back to 2006. The government has allowed back to 2009, and 18 I'm going to hold with the government's request. However,
19 what I would like to do is get those exchanged going back to 20 2009. Then if the defendants feel that there are smoking
21 guns, if you will, in regards to those, I would reconsider if 22 there are specifics that the defendants can come up with that 23 would convince me that those e-mails between 2006 and 2009 are 24 relevant. I would at least reconsider that; but at this 25 point, I think we'll stop at 2009.

1 Exit interview documents, I'm going to kind of leave
2 that alone. I really think the government has turned over the
3 relevant documents to the defendants with regards --
4 particularly in regards to Cao's exit interview. I think the 5 checklist is probably all we're going to get out of the 6 government, or at least it appears that way.

7 If there are additional items other than what has
8 been turned over, Ms. Ridgeway, obviously, you will make sure
9 that becomes available. But at this point, I think the 10 government has complied.

11 Training, the so-called Red Book, I'm going to grant
12 defendant's request into that. The issue is probably how will 13 they get that; and if that has to happen through a subpoena to 14 Lilly's, fine. But I think that's fair game. So I am going
15 to allow that as being discoverable.

16 In regards to the documents relating to concealment,
17 I am going to grant the request that the government turn over
18 any documentary evidence related to the acts of concealment
19 contained in the latest indictment.

20 Defendants have also asked for a pretrial notice of 21 any other acts of concealment that the government will present
22 that are not contained in the latest indictment. The 23 government has said that it only plans to offer evidence of 24 acts of concealment contained in that indictment. Therefore,
25 I think that the 404(b) argument is somewhat of a nonissue.

1 To the extent that the government changes its mind and plans
2 to present such evidence, then, of course, the government
3 would be obligated to provide that notice.

4 Okay, Brady material, interesting points. In 5 regards to communication between Lilly and the government, I'm 6 going to deny that. In regards to grand jury information, I'm 7 going to deny that also.

8 In regards to the protective order, defendants
9 really want to eliminate the restrictions on the experts now
10 that the trade secret charges have been abandoned. I'm going
11 to deny that request. I still think it is relevant. I agree
12 with the government that while the trade secret charges have
13 indeed been abandoned, the confidential nature of the Lilly
14 discovery material has not materially changed.

15 All right. That is my laundry list. What's left,
16 Mr. Leibman? Mr. Hensel? Mr. Newman?

17 MR. LEIBMAN: Your Honor, I'm sorry. That's quite 18 complete. The only thing that's left -- and it's something
19 the government did not object to -- is the subpoena to Lilly.
20 We included that in our memo because the rule -- Rule 17 by 21 its terms does not seem to allow a party to designate a
22 pretrial production date; and of course, pretrial production
23 is essential in order to make use of the produced materials.

24 So we've asked for the Court's permission to serve
25 Lilly's outside representative. They've agreed to accept

1 service -- the outside counsel -- with a subpoena returnable
2 we suggest 45 days. They can either move to quash in whole or 3 in part or produce documents. We'll share the subpoena with 4 the government. We'll share whatever we get from Lilly with 5 the government as well so it's transparent.

6 THE COURT: I was remiss. I had it on my list and 7 overlooked it. That is correct. I have no problem with that.
8 I think the 45 days is appropriate also.

9 MR. LEIBMAN: Thank you.

10 THE COURT: Mr. Newman?

11 MR. NEWMAN: May it please the Court, I think the 12 Court's recitation covers the ground very thoroughly and as to 13 its breadth as well.

14 The only thing that I would mention, spinning off
15 the topic that Mr. Leibman just talked about, is this issue of 16 communications between Lilly or the possibility of 17 communications between Lilly and the government. I think it's 18 probable that similar requests will be made of Lilly in a
19 third-party subpoena; and the question of whether -- if Lilly
20 has such documents in its possession as a third party that may 21 be germane to these issues, that that would be a different set
22 of arguments and a different standard for another day.

23 I think there is sufficient indications here that 24 this is a relevant issue, that there may indeed be 25 communications of this type that go beyond what is routine and

1 what would be considered normal debriefing of a victim witness
2 in order to draft a speaking indictment; and I think that
3 those arguments can rest for another day, but I just wanted to 4 point that out, that we may be back here with the shoe on the 5 other foot on that issue; and I would ask the Court,
6 obviously, to keep an open mind about that sort of thing, as 7 it always does. Thank you.

8 THE COURT: I will keep such an open mind. As you
9 can well imagine, my resolutions today are as of today; and 10 really, the purpose, as you can well imagine, is to let's get 11 this thing going. So I assume we may indeed revisit some of 12 these issues.

13 MR. NEWMAN: We appreciate that, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Ms. Ridgeway?

15 MS. RIDGEWAY: Your Honor, the only thing the 16 government would request is after the Court sets the trial
17 date, if we could indulge the Court to allow the parties to 18 try and draft another case management order similar to what
19 the government had requested originally and maybe work
20 backwards from that trial date.

21 THE COURT: I think that's probably appropriate,
22 just to kind of keep everybody on a particular road map
23 towards resolution. I think that's probably a good idea.

24 So let's talk now about a trial date. I think
25 Mrs. Ong has communicated to counsel a date in October that I

1 think Ms. Ridgeway has kind of okayed, but I don't think the 2 defendants have responded.

3 Mrs. Ong, when was that?

4 COURT CLERK: October 6th was the date Ms. Ridgeway
5 had proposed.

6 MR. LEIBMAN: May I approach and speak to that,
7 Judge?

8 THE COURT: You may.

9 MR. LEIBMAN: No one's more anxious to get a
10 resolution to this matter than the defendants, Your Honor,
11 whether that resolution comes on a motion to dismiss or comes 12 at trial; but -- and I understand the significance in any 13 criminal case of setting a trial date. It keeps the parties 14 moving and creates actual progress, not just the appearance of 15 progress; but I think we should all be realistic about the 16 date, and I think October is not a realistic date. Here's 17 why.

18 If we serve Lilly with a subpoena tomorrow or 19 Wednesday, that 45-day period -- and I don't think, in 20 fairness to Lilly, that should be shortened substantially. It
21 will be a significant subpoena. They should have a right to 22 make a motion to quash, if they choose to do that. We don't 23 want to trample on their rights as a third-party respondent.
24 That 45 days will carry us until late June, early July, I
25 guess, at this stage.

1 Assuming there's a motion, the Court will want to
2 have a hearing; presumably will allow the defendants to 3 respond to any motion. So I think we're in July before that 4 big discovery issue is addressed.

5 Even with the government's existing discovery
6 obligations, with e-mails going back to 2009 at a minimum,
7 according to Your Honor's ruling, we expect that's going to 8 take some time. The government has -- without criticizing
9 their good faith, has been somewhat slow in generating these.
10 Every e-mail has to be reviewed by Lilly counsel. We have to 11 wait for privilege logs. There's a back and forth about the 12 privilege log, that sort of thing. There are things to be 13 done now and things to be done with a third-party subpoena
14 that will consume some time.

15 Once we have all that discovery and can digest it,
16 it may inform the substantive motions that we want to file.
17 To be perfectly candid, Your Honor, we already have a very 18 good idea about some of the motions that need to be filed to 19 dismiss this what we think is a completely deficient wire
20 fraud indictment; but some others are in flux, depending on 21 what we find in discovery.

22 So realistically, Judge, I would think we would need
23 the summer to receive that discovery, have Your Honor rule on 24 any motion to quash, cajole the government into completing its 25 somewhat slow-moving, slow rollout of certain discovery items.

1 Realistically, I think we're talking then about a
2 September, maybe early September filing date or mid-September
3 filing date; and given the government's response time, perhaps
4 reply -- I hope we have a reply opportunity -- I think we're 5 well in October before the Court can have a full and fully 6 informed hearing on what will be some very significant
7 motions, motions of constitutional import in some respects, I
8 hope interesting for the Court but certainly very substantial.

9 So an October trial date I think is, frankly, not a
10 realistic one. I think if Your Honor -- I haven't talked to 11 co-counsel; but I think if Your Honor had in mind something 12 later in the year to allow those motions to be heard and if 13 the case survives, to then perhaps have a final pretrial
14 conference. Allow for in limine motions. The government has 15 indicated in the brief filed for today that it plans to file
16 in limine motions. I think there needs to be an orderly
17 interval -- at least I would suggest there needs to be one --
18 between the dispositive motions decision and the trial.

19 So for all of those reasons -- and I know I'm not 20 offering Your Honor a very practical specific date -- it seems 21 to me October is early. I don't know how co-counsel feels 22 about that.

23 THE COURT: Mr. Newman, do you want to chime in on 24 that?

25 MR. NEWMAN: For all of the reasons recited by Alan,

1 I would feel more comfortable with -- if we're doing a full
2 case management order with a deadline for dispositive motions
3 around October 6th -- and following that, of course, motions
4 in limine would come later probably once the issues were more
5 defined, if we go on beyond the motion to dismiss the 6 dispositive motions.

7 So I do think it's much more realistic, knowing
8 what's coming in terms of motions to dismiss and the things
9 that need to be received and the litigation that may happen or 10 that Lilly would have a right to assert, as to the third party
11 subpoena, with all of that, I think we would have to go
12 through October or the beginning of October to get their -- to 13 be ready to have a trial date.

14 I would think much more realistically around the 15 first of the year, right after the holidays. I would feel 16 that we could get that done and be able to stick to it.

17 Some courts, of course, like to set a date and 18 knowing that it may not be real. I doubt that this Court is 19 one of those that likes to have a moveable trial date just to 20 keep folks focused. I think everybody here is working hard,
21 including the government, to accommodate; but these are very 22 complex issues, and they have simply taken time; and we have a
23 very substantial third party here that has yet really to be 24 heard from of its own right, and it may choose to do so.

25 So with that, I think we would endorse Mr. Leibman's

1 motion of a timetable that's appropriate.

2 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Newman.

3 Ms. Ridgeway?

4 MS. RIDGEWAY: Thank you, Your Honor. The only
5 thing I would say is this. If the defendants know what 6 dispositive motions they plan to file, which is what was 7 indicated to the Court just now, we would request that they 8 file them now. If there are constitutional challenges to the 9 indictment and the four corners of the indictment, discovery
10 does not play on those issues. So those are issues that could 11 be resolved in these next five months.

12 However, if the Court is inclined to move the trial
13 date or to set it sometime later than October, we would 14 respectfully request that it be set at least in December and 15 before the new year.

16 There is one individual that I hope will be in a
17 position to help me try this case, to be honest. The Court
18 may know that the government's -- that the U.S. Attorney's 19 Office at this point is severely understaffed. We're trying 20 to hire people.

21 We have one person from the Department of Justice
22 computer crimes intellectual property section that I hope will 23 be free to try this case. If that were to happen, that 24 individual would not be available in November. He would be 25 available in December. I don't know what his calendar would

1 be in 2015, but we would ask that the Court either set the
2 matter in October or in the beginning of December.

3 THE COURT: How long have you requested --

4 MS. RIDGEWAY: Three weeks.

5 THE COURT: Is that still realistic?

6 MR. LEIBMAN: May I join Ms. Ridgeway at the podium?

7 THE COURT: Sure.

8 MR. LEIBMAN: Our estimate of three weeks, Judge,
9 was based on having a more specific and narrow understanding
10 of what the indictment says our clients took improperly, that 11 is, the specific Lilly property. So we had imagined, of 12 course, obtaining experts to speak to the non-Lilly ownership
13 of various items that they were claiming ownership of.

14 We don't have that now. Your Honor has denied those 15 particulars that we've asked for. So I think we have to think 16 through how we would propose to defend against hundreds of 17 pages of e-mail attachments with no -- with the government
18 giving us no differentiation.

19 A long way of saying that we thought three weeks was 20 a reasonable estimate at an earlier point. I think that's 21 probably still close, but I'm less confident that I can 22 pinpoint that.

23 Mr. Newman?

24 MR. NEWMAN: I would place it closer to four weeks
25 based on Mr. Leibman's considerations as well as some others.

1 I think it's fair to say that given the denial of our motion
2 for a bill of particulars, that one motion we will have
3 relates to overbreadth, and I don't know that -- I mean, I
4 think the rules and the rules of the Court provide for what 5 our deadlines are to file various motions. Having the 6 government insist that we file them today because some of them
7 are on their face and some of them are amplified by discovery
8 materials is not the way it works, as I understand it. As 9 long as we're timely and our motions are apposite, that's the 10 way the scheduling works.

11 I think it's fair to say after the bill of 12 particulars issue, we're in a way -- I think raises a stronger
13 issue as to overbreadth and vagueness; and that's, I think,
14 one we can confidently predict if that helps the Court in any 15 way. But we know the rules of procedure and the local rules.
16 We intend to follow them, of course, to the tee.

17 THE COURT: Any response to that?

18 MS. RIDGEWAY: No.

19 THE COURT: I tend to agree that October may be a
20 little bit optimistic. I too want this matter resolved in a
21 timely fashion. I can't imagine either a three- or four-week
22 trial going in December for any number of reasons. If 23 November is definitely out as far as the government, I think
24 then we're into the first of the year.

25 So Mrs. Ong, what do we have available?

1 COURT CLERK: We could begin January 5th and go for
2 four weeks.

3 THE COURT: Is that a Monday?

4 COURT CLERK: It is. Martin Luther King falls on 5 the 14th, so we would be dark that day.

6 THE COURT: Let's look at beginning on January the 7 6th. I know how Mr. Hensel likes to celebrate the new year,
8 so I want to give him proper recovery time.

9 MR. HENSEL: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: All right. Is that livable at this 11 point?

12 MS. RIDGEWAY: Yes, Your Honor, thank you.

13 MR. LEIBMAN: Yes.

14 MR. NEWMAN: Yes.

15 THE COURT: Hopefully, with that much notice,
16 Ms. Ridgeway, your co-counsel might be able to make some 17 arrangements.

18 What else can we do for the good of the cause,
19 government?

20 MS. RIDGEWAY: Nothing from the government, Your 21 Honor. Thank you.

22 MR. LEIBMAN: Nothing from defendant Cao. Thank
23 you, Your Honor.

24 MR. NEWMAN: Nothing from Mr. Li.

25 THE COURT: Very well. Thank you all. Have a good

1 day.

2 COURT CLERK: Please rise.

3 Court stands adjourned.

4 (The proceedings were adjourned at 10:27 a.m.)

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

1 CERTIFICATE OF COURT REPORTER

2
3 I, Cathy Jones, hereby certify that the foregoing is a
4 true and correct transcript from reported proceedings in the 5 above-entitled matter.

6
7
8 /s/ Cathy Jones

May 29, 2014

9 CATHY JONES, RMR, RDR, FCRR
10 Official Court Reporter
11 Southern District of Indiana
12 Indianapolis Division